Manitoba Agriculture Marketing Branch

Agriculture in Manitoba is a modern dynamic industry that uses technology and improvements in crop varieties and animal breeding to increase efficiency. Such efficiency allows Manitoba to export nearly one billion dollars worth of food every year.

The Marketing Branch is responsible for market development and market services for Manitoba's agricultural and food products.

The Branch provides initiatives for expanding and/or strengthening export markets, identifies new markets, helps develop new markets and devises and implements new efficiencies to improve the marketing system.

For Further Information

Staff of the Marketing Branch, Manitoba Agriculture, will be pleased to respond to enquiries regarding products grown and processed in Manitoba.

University of Manitoba
Food Science Department
Foods and Nutrition Department

The University of Manitoba has two departments involved with foods. The goals of both departments are to train students for employment in areas of food development marketing and consumer accessibility and product quality. The Food Science Department concentrates on the technology of processing agricultural raw materials, and moving these materials from farm gate to the consumer's plate. The Foods and Nutrition Department focuses on consumer acceptability and use of foods.

Both departments possess a wide variety of technical skills, plus complex processing testing equipment. They can assist companies in preparing test quantities of new products for market studies. Also, they can provide sensory and instrumental testing of products. The departments are most willing to serve as a resource for provincial food companies, with activities designed to complement those of the Canadian Food Products Development Centre.

R & D Service in Food Irradiation

Processing of specific food items by irradiation to improve and assure hygienic quality offers some unique technical advantages. This technology is used commercially in several countries around the world, and in a number of others is rapidly approaching commercial application. Food irradiation is endorsed by several United Nations' agencies as a means of improving the microbiological safety, and reducing spoilage losses, of appropriate categories of foods.

The Food and Agriculture section in the Radiation Applications Research Branch of Atomic Energy of Canada Ltd. (AECL) at Pinawa is engaged in research and development work on this process. Our programs and capabilities span the range from carrying out of underlying research related to this technology to development of specific products for testing and irradiation of sufficient product for test marketing. We work with a variety of Government Agencies and private corporations and are willing to enter into joint ventures of various kinds.

Manitoba Research Council
Food Technology Services

The Manitoba Research Council (MRC) provides technical assistance and consulting services to existing food industries. It also stimulates the creation of new food processing opportunities in Canada.

MCR's food technology operation is funded by fees charged for services, and by the Government of Manitoba. MRC staff work closely with researchers at the University of Manitoba and other facilities to assure the full technical resources of the province are available to clients.

MRC provides assistance to industry in the areas of: food product development; food engineering and process development food packaging; food evaluation and testing; and food information and advisory services. For small and medium-sized firms, these services represent a cost-efficient opportunity to utilize sophisticated technical and informational resources. Larger firms also use MRC's food technology services to complement their own in-house testing facilities and to verify their own test results.

Specific areas of expertise include: recipe development; sensory evaluation; consumer acceptance studies; shelf-life studies; nutritional evaluation; development of quality control and sanitation programs; pesticide residue detection; custom processing; and co-packing.

To support product/process development services, MRC's 2,000 square-metre facility has laboratories which provide chemical and microbiological analyses of raw materials and finished products. A fully-operational pilot plant also gives companies the unique opportunity to go into pilot-scale production for test marketing, without the required capital investment.

From the inception of a contract research project to completion, the client works one-on-one with a designated project leader. Budgets and other project parameters (time allocation, methodology, reporting procedure, deliverables) are clearly outlined to the client before the project is initiated. MRC staff are well-positioned to assist clients in obtaining financial assistance to help defray project costs for eligible projects.

All aspects of the client-consultant relationship are held in strict confidence.

Facts About Manitoba Agriculture

Land and Use

Manitoba extends 1,225 kilometers (761 miles), from the U.S. border to the Northwest Territories. Its total area is 67.6 million hectares (167 million acres).

The land area is 54.8 million hectares (135.5 million acres), 27 per cent of which has some agricultural potential.

Fifty per cent of land with agricultural potential was used for agriculture in 1987.

In 1987, 4.6 million hectares (11.3 million acres) were seeded to crops, 500,000 hectares (1.3 million acres) were summerfallowed and 300,000 hectares (700,000 acres) were improved pasture lands.

Farm Numbers

In 1986 Manitoba had 27,336 farms. The average farm size was 283 hectares (700 acres).

Approximately 91,000 Manitobans live on farms in the province. In 1981, one Manitoban in 10 lived on a farm. However, in 1986 the ratio changed to one in 12.

Farm Income

Realized net farm income in 1988 was $428 million.

Manitoba farmers are spending proportionally more money in 1988 than in 1987 on fuel, feed, machinery repairs, and miscellaneous costs, and less on fertilizer, interest charges and pesticides.

The proportion of farm cash receipts received from crops has declined between 1987 and 1988, but the receipts from livestock have increased.

Provincial Economy and Agriculture

Agriculture's indirect and direct contribution to the economy of the province is equal to 10.9 per cent of the gross domestic product in 1988.

In 1988, 37,000 persons were directly employed in Manitoba agriculture. In addition, 33,000 persons were employed in other areas of the provincial economy as a direct result of the agricultural industry, bringing total employment generated by agriculture to 14.2 per cent of Manitoba's labour force in 1988. This means that about one job in seven was the result of agriculture production. In addition to stimulating local employment, agriculture in Manitoba is directly responsible for about 26,000 jobs in other parts of Canada.
